

WE THE PEOPLE...

Can we talk about some things that really matter?

The Cleveland Committee on Corporations, Law and Democracy is launching a monthly discussion group to “dig deep” into the history of corporate power, democracy and the Constitution.

In this context, we will explore alternative grassroots and legal strategies to assert the rights of people to care for our families, communities, and environment.

We will begin by discussing the first two chapters of the book "Defying Corporations, Defining Democracy." The chapters are "Help, I've Been Colonized and I Can't Get Up...Take a Lawyer and an Expert to a Hearing and Call Me in a Decade" by Jane Anne Morris and "Playing by Whose Rules? A Challenge to Environmental, Civil Rights, and Other Activists" by Richard Grossman.

The two chapters total ten pages and can be downloaded for free at www.afsc.net/EJCorpDem.html.

Greg Coleridge of the Program on Corporations, Law & Democracy and uiyAmerican Friends Service Committee will facilitate the discussion.
